1. Forwarded to you at the request of [redacted] the Author. [redacted] has agreed to write for Studies in Intelligence an article that will trace the roots early in this decade of college level courses in Intelligence. [redacted]

[redacted] she is uniquely qualified to do so. The article probably will appear in the Summer issue. STAT

3. [redacted] has asked twice that I send this to you and the DCI (separately). This is not the piece she mentions in her letter of 11 January. That is being written for Studies and has yet to arrive.

Dear [redacted]:

Thank you for your letter of 14 December. I apologize for not acknowledging it sooner. The holidays took their toll here, too.

I did obtain a copy of your manuscript from [redacted] and have read it with great interest, as I have your essay from Book Forum, as well. [redacted]
